FRIDAY MORNING NOV 6, 1863

The Policy of the Administration

The Sacramento Union has a recent article in relation to the Missouri troubles which has much force In all respects, we would hardly coincide with it, and yet there is a great deal of truth in its main ideas The late dispatch containing the reply of the President to the St Louis committee in which he is reported to have said that he would take all responsibility in regard to the course of events and the conflicting issues in Missouri, was very independent—perhaps it will turn out to be right, but too many Lawrence massacres, resulting from the policy hitherto pursued, and proposed for the future, will be a heavier burden than we wish to see him bear These are the remarks of the Union

The most loyal and generous supporters of the National Administration cannot help complaining occasionally of acts countenanced by the authorities at Washington Take the policy adopted in Missouri, for example The so-called Radicals in that State are men who have sustained the Union cause ever since the beginning of the rebellion Their opponents are virulent Copperheads, eleventh hour Union men and others, who look with lenient eyes upon guerrilla depredations The whole patronage of the National Administration is bestowed upon the latter party The Federal office holders are all partners of Blair Gamble and Schofield Yet these men, who are basking in the sunshine of court favor, do not hesitate to censure the policy of the Government In the course of a recent speech at St Louis, Frank Blair denounced the able and upright Secretary of the Treasury as "but little better than Jeff Davis," because, in accordance with the advice of Gen Grant, the Secretary had placed restrictions upon the trade of the Mississippi Blair holds the commission of Major General, and is a brother of the Postmaster General He abuses in the coarsest language the personnel and the policy of the Administration for not permitting an unlimited traffic with regions in rebellion, yet is patronized by the President and controls the Federal appointments in Missouri The Union men of that State have a right to complain

A Dredging Machine —We have seen before to day many objects more attractive to the public vision than a dredging machine or mud digger We would prefer lounging in an expensively ornamented and well cared for public square, for example, and enjoying the hues that display themselves as the breeze marks its rapid course over and among the velvety grass blades, to standing upon the river bank and gazing at an uncouth, mud bedaubed, scow built machine, with its iron heart beating a loud "chug! chug!" as its single giant fist clenched and brought from the river-bed a ton of reeking, slimy mud at each elevation of its stalwart right arm So would any one else with an eye for the beautiful There are men in this community, however, so intensely practical in their ideas of what is for the best interests of the city, that they would rather have a dredging machine to dig the channel deeper and enable vessels to pursue an unimpeded course to their destination in front of the city, to having the Common Council expend money to beautify and adorn our public squares They think the true policy is, to dredge the channel first, and then it would be much easier to raise money for less practical purposes.

The "Jane A Falkinberg" —This favorite barkentine, Capt John Wiggin, arrived at her wharf on Tuesday evening, 15 days from San Francisco, with 250 tons of freight She was towed up from Oak Point by the steamer John H Couch The following is a copy of her manifest

Shipment of Gold Dust — Wells, Fargo & Company forwarded to San Francisco per steamer Pacific, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($250,000), Messrs Allen & Lewis shipped forty thousand dollars ($40,000) and Messrs. Richards & McCraken and other merchants shipped considerable, the precise amount of which we were unable to ascertain

General Grant on the Political Situation —Concerning the future political situation of the country, General Grant is reported to have said

I am not an Abolitionist I never was an anti slavery man, but I try to judge every thing honestly and fairly I am satisfied that the North and South can never live in peace except as one nation and that a free nation

Drafted Men —The New York Evening Post of October 6th, says

Detachments of drafted men continue to reach Washington daily Six hundred and forty-one in seven squads arrived during yesterday At this rate over a brigade a week is being added to the Army of the Potomac

Immense Dividends —During the last ten months the Gould & Curry silver mining company have divided $1,500,000 among their stockholders

The Mad Wrathful Women —Prentice of the Louisville Journal, receives now and then very spicy letters from Southern women and one replying to one recently, he concludes with the following remarks which show where he thinks the strength of Confederate sentiment lies

There are at this day in the rebel armies great numbers of young men who would gladly return home but dare not They are afraid not of male relations and friends at home but female They understand, that, if they were to leave the service to which in an evil hour they devoted themselves, they would be under the ban of the bitter indignation and scorn of rebel women These woman we mean only the portion of them we have been referring to, incapable of remorse or regret for all the ruin they have wrought are keeping up their unnatural and most accursed work But for them the prospect of speedy peace would be far better than it is We believe that the men North and South could come together if rebel women did not hold them apart These builders of pyramids of skulls do whatever they can, by all the arts of provocation and encouragement and blandishment, to keep up the strife We will not say that in this they unsex themselves, we will do no such injustice to the male sex The Bloomfield women's notification to us that we are to be assassinated is of no consequence except as showing, what ten thousand other things show, that some of those to whom God intended as His "last best gift to man" are made such Furies by the wild devil of the rebellion as to exult in murder by poison, by the midnight stiletto or by any means that fiendish atrocity can use

There are women, and we are sure many, who, misguided by the teachings of others, or controlled by deep love and sympathy for the South and for those struggling in her defence or governed by the influences of early associations and life long prejudices, feel a strong devotion to the rebel cause, and yet retain the gentleness, the truth, and the nobleness of womanhood For such we have heaven knows, no word or thought of unkindness While we regret their deep and most deplorable delusion, we can wish them all the good that God has in store for them

The Murderers —The supposed murderers of Magruder Newburg and Allen, are well known at the Dalles James Romain, the leading spirit of the party, lived here all last winter, and in company with San Juan Jack, kept a "pool game" in Adam Lindle lager beer cellar Although a man of rather bad character it is not known that he has heretofore been guilty of any serious crime He had been in the Boise country all summer, and only left there for the Beaver Head two months since It is said that previous to leaving Boise, he stole and ran off a band of horses Doc, or Dave Howard, his proper name is equally well known at the Dalles He lived here during the memorable winter of 61 and 62, and at the time appeared to be a wild reckless young man possessed of great personal bravery, and rather a kindly disposition Of the four, Howard is the only one who publicly exposed himself during their stay at the Dalles Page the third on the list, has lived on the opposite side of the river for several years back, and if we mistake not, now holds a land claim near the mouth of Klikitat He will be recollected as the man who was bitten by a rattle snake and narrowly escaped death some two years since He has heretofore been known as a horse thief, but we have never heard any worse crime imputed to his charge Page is the man who entered his name as Allen Brown on the register of the Globe hotel The remaining man Lowery, lived at the Dalles some five years since, and was at one time employed at Fort Dalles He is a blacksmith by trade, and in that capacity has been employed at the various military posts In the spring of '59 he went out with Capt Mullan's expedition and from that date with the exception of one or two intervals, has lived in the upper country About a year since, whilst living at Elk City, his wife deserted him, and since that time we have known but little of him Those who knew him here, regarded him as an idle, but by no means a desperate character Like Page he is a Scotchman by birth, and most likely will endeavor to make his way to the British Possessions —Mountaineer

"Legal Tenders" Declared Valid in New York State —The city article of the New York Times of 30th September says

The Court of Appeals of the State of New York, in term at Albany yesterday, rendered two very important decisions, affirming the validity of United States notes of legal tender as lawful money of the United States, receivable the same as gold and silver, in payment of all debts public and private except for United States customs and from the Government in payment of interest on so much of the public debt which Congress has declared shall be paid exclusively in specie The first case decided was made by the Bank Department of New York against the Metropolitan and Shoe and Leather Banks of this city, to compel the payment of their notes of circulation in specie instead of United States notes which were tendered to the holder of their notes before protest The Court affirmed the decision of the Court below against the Bank Department In other words, it is made the Supreme law of the State of New York that all demands upon the bank of this State including the demand for the payment of their notes of circulation may be paid in United States notes as a legal tender, and lawful money of the United States The second case was John F Roosevelt of this city (late of the Supreme Court) against Lewis H Meyer, to compel the substitution of gold for U S notes which Meyer tendered in satisfaction of a mortgage made and dated prior to the passage of the Act of Congress of February 25th 1862 creating these notes of legal tender The Court of Appeals, in this case reverse the decision of the court below in favor of Roosevelt, or, in other words, decide that Meyer had the right to pay off the mortgages and other debts whether contracted before or since the Act of Congress creating such notes as legal tender

Altogether, these decisions in their scope and bearing could not have been made more comprehensive They are, of course, final The learned bench stood six to two We presume that our city banks which, under some vague apprehension that the decision might be otherwise, have of late reduced their own circulation from 8,500 000 down to less than $5,500,000, will now run up their issues again to something like the sum total of State and United States securities, which they have in pledge in the Bank Department The General Banking Law as amended last winter would authorize the pledge of a much larger sum of United States stocks say $2 to $1 of New York State stocks, in place of half and half, as heretofore

The Russian Replies —The Paris correspondent of the London Times writes as follows, under date of Sept 22d

The French papers are rather sore on the subject of the Russian reply and their only consolation seems to be that the rebuff has been received in good company The answer to England, they point out is almost identical with that addressed to France The Government press is reserved upon the topic, that of the opposition grumbles and almost storms

Russia's answer to France is but a fresh insult" says the Opinion Nationale "It seems like a dream when one reads such a defiance thrown in the teeth of the Government which made war in the Crimea and in Italy" The coincidence of the replies with the Czar's letters to General Mouravieff and Annenkoff is, of course made the most of and indeed it would have been wise of Russia to have avoided it The France, which throughout the whole discussion has been moderate and conciliatory declares that "the Russian reply to the Western Powers is conceived in terms which render any present attempt at conciliation impossible"

Additional Eastern News

From the Sacramento Union we have the following additional news

Boston, October 28th —The State Union League of Massachusetts has elected General Butler Delegate at Large, to attend the National Union League, which meets at Washington in December Gen Butler addressed the meeting at length, taking ground with those who believe that the seceded States have annihilated themselves as States, while the power of the General Government still remains intact over their territory He is opposed to the position of a member of the Cabinet [Blair,] that the rebel Commonwealths, by throwing down their arms should be received into the Union with unimpaired rights and with their old local institutions He contended that the rebel States must be considered destroyed, or it would be almost impossible to choose another President, for the reason that no candidate likely to be elected would receive such support in the North as would give him a majority of the whole electoral college, constituted of all the States, both loyal and rebel Thus the question would be transferred to the House, where each commonwealth casting one vote, and a majority of such votes being required, the difficulty would be greatly increased The policy of safety and justice was to restore the Union in the South only as fast as the principles of freedom and loyalty are extended over the rebel domain

New York, Oct 28 —A prize fight for a thousand dollars came off yesterday between Con Fitzgerald and Ed Wilson, near Port Penn (Del) in which Fitzgerald was the victor in ten rounds Another fight between Con Orem and Patsy Marly was suspended after the seventy-sixth round, nearly the whole party being arrested

The Roanoke, from Havana, October 21st, has arrived She brings nothing new from Mexico The rebellion in St Domingo continues to grow more powerful, and covers a greater extent of territory The reported bombardment and destruction of Port au Platte is incorrect

Washington, Oct 27 —The city has been filled with rumors of a great battle to day, in front but they may all be set down as canards for two reasons First, what is left on the Rappahannock of the rebel army don't want to fight second the Union army has not yet found anybody or anything to give it battle So long as the issues at Chattanooga, Tenn, and Abington, Va, are unsettled, no battle on the Potomac need be expected

Gentlemen in military circles here consider our present position as highly favorable in the event of Lee venturing to make an attack

Washington Oct 28 —The Governor of Colorado has informed the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that, in conjunction with the Commissioner heretofore ordered to be appointed, he has concluded a treaty with the Tabeyuache Indians Although they failed to secure their settlement on the reservation, the lands ceded to the Government are probably the most valuable ever purchased by the Government from a single Indian tribe, including nearly all the mining lands yet discovered in Colorado in addition to a large amount of agricultural and grazing land lying between the 37th and 41st degrees of north latitude

Information has been received at the Indian Bureau from the Omaha Superintendency that many of the Pawnees and Winnebagoes had arrived there begging for food. The Indians from the Northern Superintendency are working their way down to the Missouri river, and it is added that unless some action is taken they will be scattered all along that river, greatly to the injury and annoyance of the whites The Government has already taken steps for the required relief

European Intelligence

The English Cabinet postponed the decision regarding the recognition of the Poles as belligerents

Troubles in India attracted considerable attention It is stated that the Punjaub had been invaded by seven thousand men, headed by the son of Dost Mohammed, which is thought to be only the vanguard of a large force British troops have been sent against them and other precautions taken to insure their overthrow

The war in New Zealand is termed a war of the races Energetic measures were being taken by the troops and colonists to obtain a decisive victory over the natives All the troops in Australia had gone over to New Zealand, and volunteers were soon to follow

Napoleon was to receive the Mexican deputation October 17th

Russia had commenced detaching certain parts of Poland from Poland A Russian Imperial decree detaches the Government of Augustowa and the District of Lorenza from Poland and incorporate them with the Russian Empire It is also stated that Russia has notified the Porte that any recognition of the Poles as belligerents will be looked upon as a declaration of war

California News.

San Francisco, Oct 28 —Captain Lawson, of the surveying steamer, appeared before the United States Commissioner to day, to answer the charge of putting one of his sailors ashore at Goose Bay, July 4th, for refusing to wear a blue shirt The Commissioner dismissed the case

The steamer Sierra Nevada brings $109,882 from Oregon, and $65,381 from Victoria

The Narragansett reports having seen last Saturday, the ship Aguila, which has the Monitor on board

Louis Napoleon —Louis Napoleon and his disease are thus written of

My opportunity for seeing the Emperor was a favorable one, and I turned it to account by making a leisurely inspection Returning to Paris from St Cloud through the Bois de Boulogne he descended from the carriage and walked for half an hour along the border of the great lake I do not remember of seeing a face with a more profound expression of stony gravity, but I would not say of impassibility. The lines are slightly deeper than one would expect to see in a man of fifty five and a very decided general tone of age is beginning to settle upon the whole physiognomy The skin has a leathery, bilious hue, and the features bear traces of the acute pain it is known he suffers I noticed a swaying motion in the gait as he leaned rather heavily upon the arm of his companion The Emperor's malady is such that he is not able to go on horseback without suffering intense pain and all his visits to mineral springs do not seem to produce any permanent relief Happily, or unhappily Emperors also are but mortals and no lithotomists can be found in all their wide dominions who are able to use the knife without causing pain Think of Louis Napoleon bound to a surgeon's table after having escaped the bombs of Orsini and the other attempts upon his life

New Store and New Goods.—The NEW FURNITURE WARE ROOMS of HURGREN & SHINDLER will be found on First street between Washington and Alder In their assortment will be found many goods of a finer quality and design than formerly offered in this city—and the whole of that is an extensive and well selected stock they intend to go on together with a long experience in the business that will retain the increasing patronage which they have enjoyed Their new place of business is one block west of the Pioneer Hotel, and near the Steamboat Landings

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Dates to October 29.

New York Oct 29th —Money unchanged Sterling dull at 160 @ 161 @ 162 Gold irregular, closing quiet at 146 Government stocks a shade easier

Fortress Monroe, Oct 27 —The Richmond Enquirer of the 27th has the following

Charleston Oct 26 —The enemy's batteries Wagner and Gregg, opened this morning the former with seven guns and the latter four The fire was principally directed against Sumter and Johnson Two monitors also were engaged The firing ceased at dark, 100 shots having been thrown from Morris Island and 160 from the monitors doing no damage Our batteries replied vigorously

Washington Oct 29 —The Alexandria Journal says trains on the Orange Railroad are now making regular trips to Catlett's Station and 13 miles beyond The Manassas road will be completed as far as the army has advanced, in two days

Chattanooga Oct 24, via Nashville 28 —The enemy's action seem to indicate that Bragg is moving a large body upon Cleveland, Tenn, with the evident purpose of breaking through our lines in that direction It is believed there that this movement is co operated in by Lee's force in Virginia which is moving down by way of Lynchburg and Bristol with the intention of driving Burnside from East Tennessee and turning the flank of our army thus compelling its retirement from Chattanooga

Cincinnati Oct 29th —Chattanooga dispatches of the 27th say a detachment of the 18th regiment floated four pontoons down the river in the face of rebel sharpshooters, and landed at Broghs ferry drove the rebels from the ridge on the south side thus opening communications with Bridgeport, Ark The rebels are flanked and must evacuate Lookout Mountain Our loss is five killed and 18 wounded

Advices from Chattanooga announce that Grant is personally directing movements, and that operations look favorable for the success of the Federal cause. It is conjectured that the enemy will retreat from their present position to avoid the trap Grant Burnside Thomas and Sherman are co operating

Stevenson, Ala Oct 15 —Yesterday Gen Hogan with 2000 men of Palmer's division attacked the enemy on Lookout Mountain, and after a short contest drove them from their position It seems probable that communications between Bridgeport and Chattanooga will be opened along the Tennessee river soon

New York, Oct 29 —A Chattanooga letter to the Herald says deserters continue to come into our lines notwithstanding the measures taken by Bragg to prevent them Nine men and one commissioned officer came in yesterday Officers who are intelligent and apparently honest tells a tale which is cheering to all good Union men, and which corroborates the information given by prisoners They say a full brigade of Tennesseeans with their General at their head attempted to come into our lines in a body one day last week and that a division of staunch rebels was called out to prevent them A fight ensued of most singular character in which artillery and muskets were used It lasted three or four hours, resulting in the subjugation of the Tennesseeans after some 800 had been slaughtered on both sides The same day cannon had been heard in our camp, but nobody could explain the phenomenon of this fire so close to the enemy's rear These officers say matters was hushed up and all has been so quiet since that most of Bragg's army know nothing definite about the matter — Bragg's distrust of Tennessee and Georgia, perhaps explains his not attacking us

Cincinnati, Oct 29 —Five cars of the Kentucky and Cincinnati Railroad, containing a portion of the 2d Ohio artillery was thrown from the track 27 miles from this city this morning One was killed and 15 wounded severely, and 32 slightly

Cincinnati, Oct 29 —The official vote of this State gives Brough 71,752 majority The total vote is 435,427

Cape Race, Oct 29 —The Germania from Southampton the 21st has arrived

The British Admiralty has decided to construct a new squadron of iron clad gunboats to be armed with two heavy Armstrong guns each

The Alabama and Georgia continue to cruise around the Cape of Good Hope

The Vanderbilt has arrived and was repairing in St Simons Bay

A Few Hints to our Fellow-Citizens —The time has now arrived when it behooves our fellow citizens to take such steps toward public and social improvement as will not only redound to their own benefit and credit, but also present rational inducements for the multitude of transient population—who now seem to remain by compulsion until a steamer can convey them to some more agreeable locality to spend their leisure and their money —to make this their abiding place during the winter months We do not assume that the city of Portland is lacking in many of the essentials which go to make up the desideratum of a commercial and domestic residence For all the exigencies of trade, she has fine stores, safe warehouses, reliable express and banking companies, ready and regular facilities for import and export, good hotels, and in fact a fair proportion of the art, science, intelligence and industry necessary to a high and increasing prosperity For the promotion of domestic happiness, she has quiet homes, good society, a liberal system of education with extended privileges, ample churches and eloquent ministers, well attended sabbath schools with earnest teachers, together with all the concomitant enjoyments and privileges that of right belong to the precincts of a permanent and delightful home With these advantages our fellow citizens are, apparently, as they should be, satisfied They have at all times been equal to the public spirit required for the prosecution of any enterprise having the ends now accomplished in view But they must not rest contented with the attainment of objects conducive to their own well being simply, they owe something to the stranger that is within their gates. They must remember—as they sit in cosy chairs drawn near to the crackling fire, and enjoy the "last new novel" or the holier communion of the carefully selected family library, with the association of tender voices and heart-warm faces—when the evening is dark, and damp, and chill, and the streets are "oh! so muddy," that the stranger in our city has none of these exclusive privileges, to be sure he can go to the theatre, if he is not afraid of missing his way to his stopping place at the close of the performance—when the lights in shop windows are extinguished, and almost Egyptian darkness blends muddy street with murky sky —he can go to some of our public gambling halls, or drinking shops, where, even if there is temptation, there is also at least a comfortable fire, and he can sit there until bed time But there are a great many men so constituted as to be unable to appreciate the attractions of such places of resort, men who could find no pleasure in the one nor comfort in the other. It is desirable to retain among us this class of men—if we desire to profit by their presence, as alike we may through their necessary cash expenditures and their moral influence— we must take steps to ameliorate their condition by providing places of resort agreeable to their tastes and profitable to their minds Temptations to error, crime and destruction are everywhere to be found more numerous than safeguards against them We want to hold out inducements such as are to be found in every city where efforts to make floating population comparatively permanent have been crowned with success We want a public library and reading room; a young men's Christian Association, with rooms open to the admission of strangers, we want a Lyceum Association, to provide lectures at stated periods through the winter, alternating with interesting and instructive debates, we want a public edifice—a city hall—in which public meetings, &c., can be held, and last, though not least, we want the streets lighted so that strangers can safely venture out after nightfall. We want our fellow-citizens to give at least a passing thought to this subject, satisfied that no man of intelligence will refuse assent to the propositions advanced, and that if once the ball is put in motion, we have self-interest if not public spirit enough to push some of the necessities herein set forth, to their successful obviation The basis of true economy is liberal yet judicious expenditure Money and time invested in the accomplishment of such objects as will increase our consuming population, will yield a dividend compounded by each winter in our growth and permanent prosperity

Sailing of the Pacific — This steamer sailed for Victoria yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Heavy Freight Up-River —The steamer Wilson G Hunt took one hundred and fifty tons of freight up to the Cascades yesterday This delayed her return, and she did not arrive at her wharf until half past six o'clock evening Failing to connect with the boat from above, she brought only 20 passengers, and but little dust Wells, Fargo & Co received $10,000.

Dedication —We have been requested to state that the Episcopal Chapel, near the public square, will be dedicated on Sabbath morning, when a collection will be taken up

Telegraph Wire Broken — The recent heavy blow has "played smash" with the telegraph between this city and Salem It will soon be repaired

The Stages —By reason of the wire being down, we were unable to learn the time at which the overland stage left Salem yesterday. It is highly probable that she will be delayed somewhat by the storm-created havoc among the trees along the road The stage due here the evening previous, did not get in until 5 o'clock yesterday morning

Attention, Portland Guards!—Your Company will meet for Drill at the Armory (Gymnasium Hall) at [illegible] o'clock punctually

The Silent but Inevitable Revolution in the South

The new correspondent of the London Times, in a letter dated Washington August 3d, tells some truths which may be new to English aristocratic ears but which we even upon this coast, have become quite familiar with. We make a few extracts:

The whole face of this continent is rapidly changing. The Northern invasion of the Southern States partakes in a great measure of the movement of the Gothic and Vandal hordes into the exhausted provinces of the old Roman Empire. The conqueror settles on the prostrate land. The Federal armies spread disorder and desolation wherever they appear. They rouse the negroes to freedom and profit by the helplessness into which sudden emancipation throws the improvident freedmen. The lords of the soil in large tracts of Tennessee or Mississippi are all away in Lee's or his fellow combattant's armies. Their families fly before their invaders, their homes remain desolate, their laborers wander about their property lies waste, unclaimed. The Northern soldier seizes on the land he has conquered. He is not unfrequently a squatter by nature; an adventurer by the force of circumstances. Many a volunteer enlisted for three months or three years but as he left his New England or his Western home he in many instances bade a lasting farewell. He left nothing worth having, nothing to be regretted behind him. The American is always for a flitting, always on the lookout for a new home. Hitherto, the pioneering tide was always westward because, in the South slavery shut the way against free labor. But now the South is to be free and its lands are cheaper than any lot in Wisconsin or Oregon. They are to be had for the taking. Many a man who enlisted for the fixed term would be at a loss to know what to do with himself on its expiration. Some of them most of them enter on a new engagement. They will abide under the standards till the war is over but whether for war or peace, of one thing they are sure, that they will never go back to their country. This is the case with many of the native Americans, but it is more generally so with the myriads of Germans, Irish and other adventurers who constitue the main strength of the Northern army. Of these a great many had barely landed in New York or Boston in the first outbreak of hostilities. They had no plan as to their future progress; they had not made up their minds as to their ultimate destination. As they were hesitating between Canada or California, the Republican bounties came to tempt them, and they turned their hatchets or reaping hooks into sabres and bayonets. The would be settlers hired themselves out as soldiers, but when soldiers work is done, they will naturally look back to their original purpose as settlers. A journey back to the North and East is the last thing they would think of, civilized life has no prize to tempt them with, it has crowded them, pushed them from its bosom. The Far West is very far, Canada is cold and gloomy. California is lawless and wasteful. Why should they go further and fare worse? The South is all before them where to choose. There are houses and plantations, cleared forests and tilled fields, ready made settlements, stray cattle, masterless slaves to be utilized as free laborers. The victorious legion will be quartered on the vanquished land on something akin to the feudal system. The South will be recolonized, and the invasions will lead to an agrarian settlement.

Every one may see what an all-sweeping change is contempalted in the social economy of Southern life. The present war is to end in universal emancipation and upon the ruin of slavery and the slave owner an attempt will be made to organize negro labor under white supervision, leaving it for the future to decide whether the black race can be thus utilized, or whether it must be utterly superseded, trampled out and extinguished. There is something certainly appalling in the idea of this wholesale spoliation of the whole race and the sudden emancipation of another race so universally deemed unfit to take care of itself, but the North is drunk with the overwhelming conciousness of its power, and as success opens its way for the accomplishment of its will it meditates and actually acts upon a policy it has as yet hardly the assurance to avow.

There is no apprehension, meanwhile that this occupation of the South may, in any perceptible degree, affect or wear out the North. Should every one of the million of combatants now in the field, cast his lot in the South as a permanent settler, the gaps left by them in Northern society would be immediately filled up by the incessant tide of immigration from the Old World. * * * * The North American hive of nations is swarming down southwards, and the European tide is rushing in, pressing on, allowing no slack or stagnation, giving the willfulness of man all the impulse of irresistible fate. It was not so much as recruits for the Northern armies now in the field that these new comers were so rapturously hailed at their landing in the country of their adoption, but they were welcomed as combatants in that great war of colonization and civilization which enlists its pioneers out of all the European tribes, but in which the Anglo Saxon deems himself entitled to take the lead.

The Fare of the Fair.—The penchant of the fair sex for good living has something in it of instinct. A series of exact and rigorous observations have demonstrated that a succulent diet, delicate and well attended to, repulses for a long time, and very far the exterior appearance of old age. It gives more brilliancy to the eyes, to the skin more freshness, to the muscles more support, and as it is certain in physiology that wrinkles, those formidable enemies of beauty, are due to the depression of muscles, it is equally true to say, all things equal, that those who know how to eat are comparatively ten years younger than those to whom this science is a stranger. Painters and sculptors are well aware of this fact, for they never represent those who are abstinent from choice or duty as misers and anchorites, without giving them the paleness of sickness and the leanness of misery, and the wrinkles of decrepitude.

This agrees with the saying of Daniel Webster—No good dinner ever disagreed with a man, it is the bad ones that kill. Good living has much to do with morals, beauty and intellect. Shakespeare was notorious for his fondness of venison, hence his Hamlet and the rest of his plays.—Leslie's Illustrated

Hints to Visitors.—The Saginaw Republican has an ill natured foreman whom the publishers of that paper were compelled to gratify by publishing the following hints to visitors to the composing room.

Don't ask the question 'How large is your subscription list?' Ask the editor how many shirts he has, or how many pairs of stockings—either of the above questions might be asked with equal propriety. Don't look over the copy that the compositors are setting; don't whistle, sing or dance—printers generally get free tickets to the best dances and concerts, and have a critical ear for music. Don't touch anything. Though you may not know how easy it is to knock down a column of type, we do not wish you to try it. We do not want boys to come into the office at all—we keep a Devil here and evil communications corrupt good manners. Don't try to read the types that are standing—we offer no premiums for such achievements.

Reasonableness of the Draft.—The law, says General Dix, under which the draft is made, is founded on the principle that every citizen who enjoys the protection of the Government may be summoned in season of great public danger to take up arms for the common defense. No political society can exist unless this principle is acknowledged, and there is no civilized country in which it is not recognized. The permission to furnish a substitute or to purchase exemption is designed to provide for cases of hardship and if either provision were stricken out these cases would be multiplied.
